The bill amends 1973 PA 116 which provides for the regulation of child care organizations by exempting from the definition of "child care center" and "day care center" any facility or program for school age children that is operated at school by a public school or a person or entity contracting with a public school. There are currently 794 such facilities or programs across the state. Each facility pays an initial annual fee of between $40 and $80 depending on the size of the facility. Bi-annual renewals are also imposed on the facilities at a level equal to half of the initial fee (i.e. between $20 - 40). The bill would reduce state licensing fee revenues by around $13,000. State regulatory costs would also decrease by an indeterminate amount.
