Resolutions

Senator Shirkey offered the following concurrent resolution:

Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 20.

A concurrent resolution of tribute offered as a memorial for John A. "Jack" Welborn, former member of the House of Representatives and the Senate.

Whereas, It is with great sadness that the members of the Michigan Legislature learned of the passing of Jack Welborn. He served his constituents and the people of the entire state with great conviction and dedication during his time in the House and Senate; and

Whereas, Jack Welborn brought a wide range of public and private sector experience with him to Lansing. He spent two years in the Naval Reserve and, over the course of his life, was a dairy farmer, insurance agent, and volunteer firefighter. In 1966, Jack Welborn started his public service career when he was elected Cooper Township Supervisor. He also served as chairman of the Kalamazoo County Board of Supervisors, on the Gull Lake School Board, and as Kalamazoo Soil Conservation District Director; and

Whereas, Jack Welborn arrived in Lansing in 1973 to represent the people of Kalamazoo County in the Forty-seventh House District. When the area's Senate seat became vacant the following year, the voters of the Twenty-first Senate District - encompassing parts of Cass, Kalamazoo, St. Joseph, and Van Buren counties - sent Jack Welborn across the Capitol in the summer of 1974, where he remained until 1982 when he ran for Governor. Following the death of his brother, who represented the Thirteenth Senate District, Jack Welborn signed up to serve the people of Barry, Ionia, Kalamazoo, and Montcalm counties as their senator in a 1985 special election. Those voters would elect him twice more, in 1986 and 1990; and

Whereas, While serving in the Legislature, Jack Welborn championed smaller government, deregulation, lower taxes, and pro-life causes. Despite his strongly held conservative views on many issues, he was able to find common ground with his colleagues across the aisle, championing bipartisan criminal justice and corrections reform while chairing Senate committees on those issues. He also supported issues back home, including saving the historic Kalamazoo Psychiatric Hospital Water Tower from demolition. Jack Welborn served on many committees in both chambers, including serving as chair of Senate committees on criminal justice and law, family law, corrections, urban affairs, and economic development and the Senate Select Committee on Export and Trade; serving as vice chair of Joint Committee on Administrative Rules; and being a member of Commerce; Regulatory Affairs; Appropriations and Retirement, including many subcommittees; Labor and Retirement; Municipalities and Elections; Finance; Constitutional Revision and Women's Rights; Taxation; Tourist Industry Relations; and Youth and Student Participation. He introduced dozens of bills every session to push for measures important to his constituents, with a particular focus on mental health and issues affecting children; and

Whereas, After leaving Lansing in 1994, Jack Welborn returned to his family's homestead farm where he grew up and opened an antique shop with his wife. He enjoyed time in his workshop and with his grandchildren during his retirement; and

Whereas, Jack Welborn was a committed and hardworking legislator who cherished his family. Upon his passing, we offer our condolences to his family and friends. We hope that they may find comfort in the knowledge that the community and state share in their bereavement and that the legacy of Jack Welborn's contributions will long continue to enrich our state; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That we offer this expression of our highest tribute to honor the memory of John A. "Jack" Welborn, a member of the House of Representatives from 1973 to 1974 and a member of the Senate from 1974 to 1982 and 1985 to 1994; and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this resolution be transmitted to the Welborn family as evidence of our lasting esteem for his memory.

Pending the order that, under rule 3.204, the concurrent resolution be referred to the Committee on Government Operations,

Senator Lauwers moved that the rule be suspended.

The motion prevailed, a majority of the members serving voting therefor.

The concurrent resolution was adopted by a unanimous standing vote of the Senate.

Senator Lauwers moved that rule 3.204 be suspended to name the entire membership of the Senate and the Lieutenant Governor as co-sponsors of the concurrent resolution.

The motion prevailed, a majority of the members serving voting therefor.

A moment of silence was observed in memory of John A. "Jack" Welborn, former member of the House of Representatives and the Senate.

Senators Shirkey, McCann and Nesbitt asked and were granted unanimous consent to make statements and moved that the statements be printed in the Journal.

The motion prevailed.

Senator Shirkey's statement is as follows:

Colleagues, I also want to add to the celebration and acknowledgement of one of our former colleagues that passed this past March. Senator Welborn was a man whose public service was the very definition of conservative. He knew what it meant to protect, in other words conserve what cannot be replaced, and he fought valiantly for those who are the least among us. Jack, a native of Kalamazoo, began his career in Lansing when he was first elected to the House of Representatives in 1972, he was later elected to the Senate in 1974, and, following a bid for Governor, he was re-elected in 1984. Jack was known for his work protecting the unborn with Right to Life, his efforts to conserve our natural environment, and for his success guarding the people against high taxes and big government. People, not politics were at the center of Jack's work and he will be remembered as a principled and steadfast servant.

His legacy is a much needed reminder of this day and age, where one of the most powerful and persuasive tools we wield as legislators is integrity. As I already mentioned, we are joined today in the north Gallery by his wife Dorothy of nearly 70 years, and a whole host of children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren that are watching live stream. And, for you grandchildren and great-grandchildren, you can be very proud of the legacy that your grandpa and your great-grandpa left and he would expect you to follow in his footsteps and find some way to serve as your grandpa and great-grandpa did. Jack leaves behind a long list of close relatives and friends, many of whom, as you know, are now with us in the North Gallery. On behalf of the Michigan Senate, I offer our condolences and our gratitude for Senator Welborn, and to you specifically Dorothy, because nobody can serve in this capacity without having somebody at home supporting them.

Senator McCann's statement is as follows:

I'd like to welcome to the Michigan Senate and express my condolences to the family and friends of Senator Jack Welborn. I never met Senator Welborn—or his brother Robert, the other Senator Welborn from Kalamazoo County—but I understand that he was deeply committed to our community, and we are all grateful for his many years of public service to Cooper Township, Southwest Michigan, and the state of Michigan. Even though we never had an opportunity to work together, we shared many interests: increasing access to mental health services, preserving historic properties, serving our community, and a love of family. For any individual who serves that many years in public office, you know that their family and the people that love them serve in their own way too, always sharing their loved one's time with the public and the issues of the day. For those of you here today to celebrate your husband, father, grandfather, uncle, friend, my heart goes out to you, thank you for joining us today.

Senator Nesbitt's statement is as follows:

Thank you to the family of Senator Welborn for joining us today. Ten years ago during the redistricting process, my state House district picked up Cooper Township—Alamo and Cooper, and one of the first advice I got, I think from the madame Secretary, was you need to go visit Jack. And, there north of Parchment was the Welborn farm and antique shop filled with an array of items and it was something where it was always a pleasure to stop by there and get the advice and support of somebody who understands politics and understands what it means to serve. But, if you lived in Southwest Michigan and if you wanted to be active in Republican politics, you knew the journey included going to the Welborn farm. Senator Welborn was a man of strong beliefs—those who did not know him personally may have only heard his platform of limited government, low taxes and support of the unborn. However, he was more than a political platform—he was a man who cared deeply for others, about his community, about our nation and championed many causes that were not popular at that time.

Growing up on the family farm in Cooper Township, Jack Welborn was not afraid of fighting for what he believed in. If you know a dairy farmer, you know they're not afraid of hard work and they're not afraid to fight for what they believe in. He served our nation in the Naval Reserve, he represented a willingness to serve no matter what the cost. Volunteered as a firefighter and served on the Gull Lake school board. Should not come as a surprise to anyone when Senator Welborn announced that he was going to run in 1966 against a long-time incumbent supervisor, won that race. As a township supervisor he made a name for himself taking on the state by championing fair taxes and less government. In fact, Cooper Township prevailed, and later in his career, he would take this experience to the legislature where Tax Tribunal legislation was enacted in his first term in office.

It was often been said that Senator Welborn was a man ahead of his time. It has been said he led the conservative movement before there was a movement; that he was a Reagan conservative before President Reagan knew he was one. A man of conviction, he supported the unborn both in the legislature and in his volunteerism with the local Right to Life. He fought for transparency in millages. He voted for the Senate amendments that later created Proposal A.

But while it is easy to highlight his conservative leanings, Senator Welborn could not be defined as one dimensional. He worked hard with his colleagues on both sides of the aisle to champion issues that were not often discussed, let alone popular at that time: marijuana decriminalization, crime and prison reform, mental health services, supporting Vietnam veterans, we call it PTSD today, preservation of agricultural land, supporting a law school for Western Michigan University, housing and counseling services for young people, increasing access for mobility impaired people to buildings. Again, these are issues we are dealing with today and he was talking about these thirty years ago, forty years ago, a man ahead of his time.

Public service was never about Jack. It was about serving the state regardless of the issue. He gave up running for re-election so he could run for Governor. And when he lost, he went back to the family homestead content in his service. When his brother Robert passed away, he went on to serve as a state Senator for that district, Jack stepped up again and ran in a special election and filled his brother's seat. He continued working on issues that impacted everyday people. After four decades of public service, in 1994, Senator Welborn returned home, running the family business, Welborn Antiques, on the family property with his beloved wife Dorothy. What a testament of love and faithfulness.

While Senator Welborn has lived a life in the public eye, he left an imprint on both his community and his family. He was credited with playing a key role in the preservation of the Colony Farm orchard, Asylum Lake Preserve and the Kalamazoo Psychiatric Water Tower. More importantly, he cherished his three children, Kayla, Kami and John and his grandchildren, great-grandchildren, nieces and nephews. Senator Welborn is remembered as a person of honesty, empathy and principles. I was fortunate to know Senator Welborn and am better for having learned from him. With that, thank you, may God bless you and your family and thank you for your continued service.

Statements

Senators VanderWall, MacDonald and Runestad asked and were granted unanimous consent to make statements and moved that the statements be printed in the Journal.

The motion prevailed.

Senator VanderWall's statement is as follows:

I stand here today to honor a Michigan native and a true American hero—Korean War veteran Corporal Duane Edgar Dewey, who passed away on October 11 at the age of 89. While serving in Korea, when he was 19 years old, Corporal Dewey was wounded by a grenade that exploded at his feet. As he was being treated by the Navy medical corpsmen, another grenade hit the ground beside them. Pulling the corpsmen to the ground and warning members of the nearby squad, Corporal Dewey flung himself on the grenade, reportedly shouting, Doc, I got it in my hip pocket. The grenade exploded, inflicting wounds throughout the lower part of his body. He also sustained a bullet wound to the stomach.

After treatment in Korea, Corporal Dewey was evacuated to the United States naval hospital in Japan; and then on to the naval hospital in Mare Island, California; and finally Great Lakes, Illinois. Following his recuperation at Great Lakes, he was released from active duty on August 19, 1952. On March 12, 1953, Corporal Dewey was the first person to receive the Medal of Honor from President Dwight David Eisenhower, who was reported to have said to him, You must have a body of steel. Dewey was also awarded the Purple Heart Medal, Navy Presidential Unit Citation, National Defense Service Medal, Korean Service Medal with two bronze service stars, and the United Nations Service Medal.

In 2014, the U.S. Postal Service honored him with a Korean War Medal of Honor stamp, and a special plaque was erected in his honor at the Veterans Memorial Park in Manistee in 2016. I am deeply honored to stand here before you and pay tribute to Corporal Dewey, a humble and true American hero who called Northern Michigan and the 35th District home for many years. He may have had a body of steel, but he had a heart of gold and he will be missed. I would now ask if we could observe a moment of silence for Corporal Duane Edgar Dewey in gratitude for his service and life to the United States and the state of Michigan.

A moment of silence was observed in memory of Duane Edgar Dewey, U.S. Marine Corps veteran and Medal of Honor recipient.

Senator MacDonald's statement is as follows:

Colleagues, it is my great pleasure today to recognize a very important group that has not only made a lasting impact on me personally, but our state and our country as a whole. October is Filipino-American History Month and I am proud to stand here today and celebrate alongside of many, to recognize the contributions this community has made to both our state and our nation.

It is with sincere gratitude that we welcome this opportunity to salute the many ways in which the Filipino-American community has given rich culture based on family values, religion, work ethic, and community engagement. America is a melting pot, and America's culture is a rich blend of many diverse backgrounds. By promoting awareness of Filipino-American contributions to social, economic, cultural, and political life in the United States, everyone can take great pride in these many contributions that the Filipino-American community has brought to all of us.

Colleagues, myself and Senator Wojno would like to welcome our guests, representing the Filipino-American community up in the east Gallery. I invite all of you to come to a reception out on the east lawn after session.

Senator Runestad's statement is as follows:

The Internal Revenue Service already knows how much money that you make. Now, they want to know how much money you spend as well. The Biden administration and congressional Democrats have proposed a dangerous new requirement on banks to report every transaction on accounts over $600, every single transaction. It is couched as an effort to catch tax evaders and pay for the $3.5 trillion spending package, but this isn't about making sure the wealthy are paying their fair share, this is about a power grab over the American lives of the American people in an attempt to pay for the government's $3.5 trillion bust, back, broke plan.

And, this proposed plan also is going to hire 87,000 new IRS agents to create the financial police state with the mission of overtaxing and criminalizing ordinary Americans who don't have the resources to fight back in court over ordinary transactions labeled suspicious by the executive branch. The exact wording of the proposal, published by the treasury, states that requirements would apply to all businesses and all personal accounts from financial institutions including banks, loans, investment accounts, with the exception of the accounts below a gross threshold below $600. This means that every time your family makes a purchase, goes on vacation, gets paid, the IRS is going to know about it. Paying for rent, making a car payment, cashing a check, if you haven't been paying to this, well you ought to be.

In a letter sent to Congress last month, 23 state treasurers and auditors called the Biden policy one of the greatest infringements of data privacy in our nation's history. The American Bankers Association said these new reporting requirements will create unnecessary and expensive burdens on banks and raise the cost of tax preparation for small businesses, but more importantly, they raise serious questions about our customers' right to privacy. This proposed overreach isn't just unnecessary, it is also incredibly dangerous. This would give the federal agents new sweeping powers to snoop in on your families' personal finances, the proposed plan will seriously put your financial information at risk. For example, the IRS experiences 1.4 billion cyberattacks every year and has dealt with multiple data breaches.

Giving these bureaucrats even more financial data only puts American families more at risk. These proposed rules would also be a major burden on our local banks, credit unions, and financial institutions. Compliance costs for banks would run into the billions of dollars for new technology, computer equipment, software programming, new staff; big banks could probably afford this but local banks cannot. It is simply more overregulation and strangulation of our economy for no viable reason. So, why would the Biden administration continue to push this? What is the reason for making such a dangerous overstep? Well, they say that it's about targeting high income tax dodgers, but the effect of this overreaching policy is more likely to target mainstream families and small business owners than trust-fund babies and hedge-fund managers.

The IRS's investigation track record spells this out. A 2017 report by the Inspector General for tax administration found the IRS criminal investigation division regularly violated citizens' rights and ignored their due process requirements. Retail, hotel, wholesale, service restaurants, other small businesses will be the prime targets of the IRS bank seizures and account freezing.

And in the end, it will be less about investigating any real tax violations. These investigations are less about collecting tax from the wealthy and more about interrogating our small businesses. The reality is that all of this is about the Biden administration's massive tax-and-spend agenda. It is about more power concentrated in D.C. It is less about freedom, less about privacy—it's about less freedom, less privacy, less opportunity; and more about the intrusion, more overreach, and more big government.
